

DMMM2 Registration Award for Students, Postdoctoral Researchers, and Young Investigators

The 2nd TMS Summit on Diversity in the Minerals, Metals and Materials Professions will include solutions-driven programing focused on three areas identified through the work of DMMM1 in 2014. These include (1) strategies for increasing underrepresented minority (URM) engagement in the STEM professions (2) best practices for building a welcoming and inclusive workplace culture and (3) addressing factors behind the self-induced glass ceiling and supporting new pathways to career fulfillment. Full details on this event are available at www.tms.org/diversity2016. This Registration Award will enable a number of students, postdoctoral researchers, and young investigators to advance in the field of materials science through participation in this important society event. The program's purpose is two-fold:

- 1. To enhance the professional development of students, postdoctoral researchers, and young investigators through leadership opportunities and networking at DMMM2.
- 2. To foster an appreciation and desire among members to play an active role in TMS and advance to volunteer leadership positions within the society in the coming years.

Funding

The DMMM2 Registration Reimbursement Awards are funded by the National Science Foundation (NSF) and will be provided to multiple recepients. Each award recipient receives complimentary registration to DMMM2 which includes the following:

- · Meeting and reference materials distrbuted as part of the summit
- · Admission to all programming and workshops offered during the summit
- · Break refreshments on both days
