146th Annual Meeting & Exhibition

THE WORLD COMES HERE.

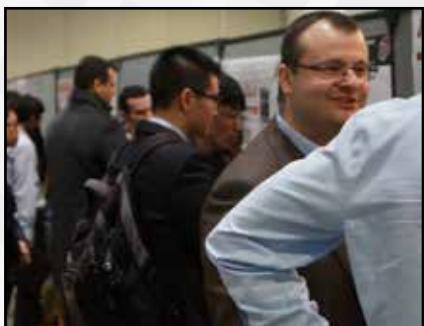

EXHIBIT PROSPECTUS

The Exhibit Hall is open
February 27–March 1, 2017

“Every year we attend TMS and it consistently results in genuine inquiries about Nanovea’s Instruments & Lab Service capabilities.”

—Ray Weedman, Marketing
Director, Nanovea Inc.

The TMS2017 Annual Meeting & Exhibition

The TMS2017 Annual Meeting & Exhibition (TMS2017) has already received a record number of abstracts—more than 4,600—and is shaping up to be one of the biggest TMS annual meetings yet. So, who will you meet at TMS2017?

- CEOs and CTOs
- Program managers
- Industry consultants
- Engineers and scientists
- Suppliers
- Research & development professionals

TMS2017 welcomes two co-located international meetings, the 3rd Pan American Materials Congress and Energy Materials 2017, co-sponsored by the Chinese Society for Metals, which will bring a strong industrial presence and give you the chance to reach the world in one convenient location.

Exhibit at the anchor meeting of the minerals, metals, and materials community: TMS annual meeting programming spans the entire materials life cycle.

View the technical program at www.tms.org/TMS2017 to see how TMS2017 best matches your business interests.

"With attendees from around the world, there is always good potential to meet new clients. It is simply a 'can't miss' event!"

—Jim Checkeye, Manager, Non-Ferrous Industry Products, Bloom Engineering

Featured Event

The TMS Bladesmithing Competition will return to the Exhibit Hall in 2017, and is sure to draw significant foot traffic.

"Fritsch Milling and Sizing, Inc. has found great success at the TMS exhibit. It is a beneficial event that allows for focused conversations about technology, critical applications, and new advances of both the scientists in attendance and our company's interests."

—Melissa J. Fauth,
President, USA, Fritsch Milling
and Sizing, Inc.
