12th International Conference on Magnesium Alloys and their Applications

JUNE 15–18, 2021

Hotel Omni Mont-Royal
Montreal, Quebec, Canada

The 12th International Conference on Magnesium Alloys and their Applications (Mg 2021) will convene the global research community to explore the latest discoveries in magnesium research, both fundamental and applied, in Montreal, Canada. First held in 1986 in London, this is the longest running conference dedicated to the development of magnesium alloys.

The conference will cover the full breadth of magnesium research and development, from primary production to applications to managing end-of-life. Scientists and engineers from academia, government and industry will discuss new developments in magnesium alloys and gain valuable insights.

A call for abstracts will take place in 2020. Start making plans to share your work and engage with the growing magnesium community for this popular networking event.
